Key Factors to Consider When Buying a TV in 2026

Before diving into specific models, focus on these eight decision-makers:

- Screen size – match the TV to your viewing distance (1.5–2.5× the diagonal for 4K).
- Resolution – 4K UHD is now the baseline; look for HDR10 or Dolby Vision for better contrast.
- Panel technology – LED, QLED, Mini-LED, or OLED affect brightness, black levels, and price.
- Smart platform – Fire TV, Roku, or Google TV give app access; built-in voice assistants add convenience.
- Audio – thin-bezel TVs often have modest speakers; a soundbar can be a worthwhile upgrade.
- Design – slim bezels, wall-mount compatibility, and aesthetics matter for living-room integration.
- Connectivity – HDMI 2.1 ports enable 4K@120Hz for gaming PCs and next-gen consoles.
- Price – calculate cost-per-inch and watch for seasonal deals.
