Why a side-by-side comparison matters in 2026

The robot-vacuum landscape has exploded, with dozens of releases each year. Features like self-empty docks, mopping pads, and AI-driven navigation now vary widely between brands. By matching the exact capabilities you need—suction power for carpets, mopping for hard floors, obstacle avoidance for pet-filled rooms—against the price you're willing to pay, you avoid overpaying for unnecessary extras or missing a feature that would save you time.

Core features to evaluate

When shopping, focus on these five areas:

- Suction power – measured in Pascals (Pa); higher numbers mean better pickup on carpets and pet hair.
- Mopping capability – models with a water tank and vibrating pad can handle light stains on hardwood or tile.
- Auto-empty dock – transfers debris from the robot's bin to a larger base, reducing maintenance frequency.
- Smart mapping & navigation – enables room-by-room cleaning, virtual walls, and efficient path planning.
- Voice-assistant compatibility – lets you start, stop, or schedule cleaning via Alexa, Google Assistant, or Siri.

Each model covered here balances these traits differently.

Performance matrix (prices checked Oct 6 2026)

Model	Price	Suction Power (Pa)	Mopping	Auto-Empty Dock	Smart Mapping	Voice Assistant	Dustbin Capacity
iRobot Roomba 115X Combo with AutoEmpty Dock	$199.99	2,200 Pa	Yes (vibrating pad)	Yes	Yes (Imprint Smart Mapping)	Alexa, Google Assistant, Siri	0.5 L
Shark AI Ultra	$249.99	2,500 Pa	No	Yes (self-empty base)	Yes (AI Laser Navigation)	Alexa, Google Assistant	0.6 L

Which vacuum should you choose?

If you want mopping plus self-empty convenience at the lowest price, the Roomba 115X Combo delivers solid suction, a vibrating mop pad, and an Auto-Empty Dock for under $200.

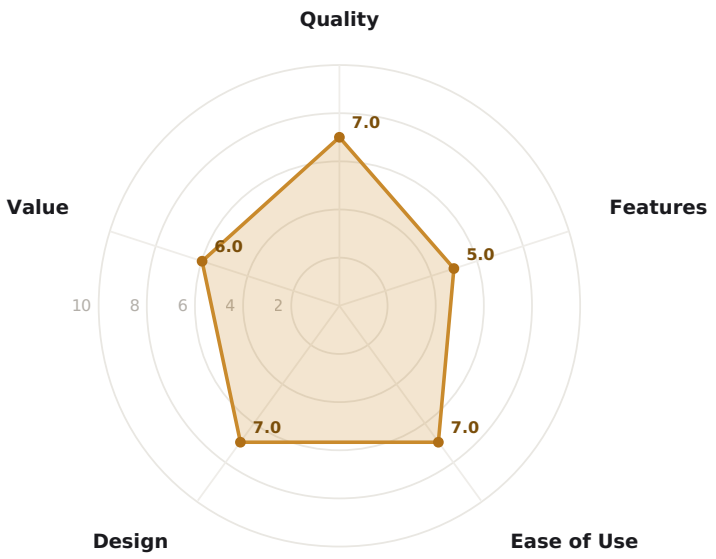

If pet-hair pickup and pure suction power are your top priorities, the Shark AI Ultra offers higher suction (2,500 Pa) and AI laser navigation that excels on carpets and around obstacles, though it lacks a mopping function.

Consider your floor mix, budget, and how often you'd like to empty the bin. Click the links above to see current deals and make your purchase today.
