Why a Robot Vacuum-Mop Combo Matters in 2026

Busy schedules, pets, and kids mean floors get dirty faster than you can keep up. A robot that vacuums and mops in one pass eliminates the need for a separate mop and saves you valuable time.

Thanks to years of real-world testing, today’s dual-function robots earn high trust scores—most users rate them 4 stars or higher for reliability and cleaning performance.

In this guide we compare three popular options: the iRobot Roomba 115X Combo with Auto-Empty Dock, the same model without the dock, and the Shark AI Ultra (vacuum-only). Each sits at a different point on the price-feature spectrum.

We break down suction, mopping capability, navigation, battery life, and overall value, showing you the proof points that matter most for a spotless home.

For households that want a light wet-clean after vacuuming, the Roomba combo is the clear choice.

Navigation & Obstacle Avoidance

Roomba 115X – iAdapt 3.0 with vSLAM, remembers room layouts, avoids cords and pet bowls.

Shark AI Ultra – AI Laser Vision + object detection, strong at avoiding shoes and toys.
